

Spain

Our Spanish pool of respondents has a high proportion of readers, with 91% having read a book over the last year and 80% having purchased one. Those numbers are well above the average of the 19 countries surveyed. Like in other countries, paper books are the most purchased format. However, the Spanish respondents tend to purchase more e-books than the average of the study respondents. Fiction is the most purchased genre, especially among the 35+ year olds. Regarding buying locations, 83% of the surveyed Spaniards usually purchase both online and in physical shops, with the main incentive to buy in physical independent bookshops being the enjoyable atmosphere. However, it is also important to note that Spain is the only country surveyed where receiving advice and recommendations from the booksellers appears amongst the top reasons to purchase in physical bookshops.

Introduction

In order to stay resilient, keep a relevant offer of books and a viable business in a fast-paced world, retailers such as booksellers need a solid understanding and knowledge of current trends and consumers' shopping priorities. To a certain degree, such knowledge can be gained from engaging with the regular customers and the local community, but real foresight can only be achieved through research into customers' priorities and behaviours, through data collection and analysis. To meet this need and sector priority, EIBF commissioned a study through its RISE Bookselling project titled RISE study on Consumer Behaviour-Book-Buying Trends, Reading Habits & Customer Needs in December 2023.

Out of several candidates, Listen, a Belgian-based consultancy with pre-existing contacts and experience in multi-country surveys was deemed the most fitting and was contracted in late 2023 to carry out the study. Throughout spring 2024, Listen conducted an online quantitative survey in 19 countries across the globe, where EIBF's members are based. A representative sample of 500 respondents was collected per country, and 9500 people were surveyed in total, giving us unique insights and the possibility to compare current trends and consumers' attitudes to book-buying in the 19 countries surveyed.

The study takes into consideration that globalisation and the digital revolution have undoubtedly changed the way people purchase and consume goods, including books, thus transforming today's retail environment and customers' buying habits. Research like this is therefore invaluable as it can provide booksellers with tools and precious information to help anticipate what their customers look for and might expect from them, not only today, but also tomorrow. Most importantly, it can help them remain competitive and resilient.
